Preface

What if I were to tell you a tale of an ancient time. Might it be a story you would find interesting? I could tell you my name is Adam. I could say I am among the last group of humans from your ancient past, that the leadership council of our world has appointed my small group of six souls to seed the Earth for future evolution. One day those seeds will again evolve into human form. When your own culture has advanced sufficiently in scientific foundation, this document will find its way into your public domain.

Is this a story you might believe? My fictional character has an impossible task because his success depends on your own system of beliefs[1]. If you believe this is a book of fiction, you perceive the words here very differently than a book of facts, or in this case, a book of theory. Or rather, a book of beliefs. Unlike a book of religion, this book does not tell you what to believe. It explains why your beliefs, whatever they may be, are an important part of the Universe system. Beliefs, in fact, play a key role in our lives.

Let me explain from the perspective of a six-year-old. By the age of six I knew all that I would ever know.

You may not believe this statement possible. And why would you? You have this thing in your mind that instantly recognizes and discards false information. This critical factor[2] is always on guard, placing value on all information we see, hear, touch, and even imposing its influence on the things we think about. It will instantly recognize added information as true or false. You might instantly like or dislike a person you see because your critical factor functions faster than lightning.

The thing is this critical factor kicks in around six years old. Before that our minds are a sponge, soaking up knowledge, perspective, experience, memories, meaning. This early childhood learning contributes to a belief system that governs everything we do in life and all choices we might make. It is our own personal map of the world. It is the function of this critical factor to evaluate added information, accepting whatever supports this internal system of beliefs, and rejecting whatever does not fit.

The critical factor is a function of the unconscious, evaluating new information related to our core beliefs. If the new information does not fit with your core beliefs, the critical factor will reject it. The critical factor is the gate keeper to the unconscious mind. The unconscious translates this critical factor intervention, along with other factors described later, to produce an emotional response that suggests how you should respond to the new information. The goal of the critical factor is to keep everything the same. Because if everything remains the same, you remain safe.

If for example someone tells you jump out that window, you will grow wings and fly, your critical factor immediately rejects the suggestion. Your unconscious mind responds accordingly. Your unconscious mind is there to protect you.

If Adam, in my intro story, tells you that all members of his culture have ascended to the other side, what might you think? Or might you gloss over it because such a concept is not compatible with your belief system?

At the core of the critical factor is a system of beliefs constructed by specific factors. You might have an idea of what these factors might be. I have at least one you may not be aware of and will explain shortly.

Your belief system decides whether you are rich or poor, loved, despised, hateful, loving, strong, weak, a winner, a loser, a success in life or not. Your belief system decides whether you can speak to the living, or perhaps even speak with the dead. At this point you may find you critical factor asking "WHAAAT?"

You might wonder what this has to do with Homeward Bound. The answer is this. The information I am about to describe differs significantly from everything you have heard before. Or you like me, these thoughts and ideas are with you often. So, I ask you while reading this book, to set aside that critical factor. The information contained on pages that follow is mind blowing, or if you permit, mind expanding. If you allow your critical factor to take a break, just rest for a moment as you read these words and let us continue this journey together. I wonder what would happen if you would allow yourself to be open to this information? Could your life be changed for the better? And would that be worth it?

We reach a point in our lives when we begin questioning the beliefs that govern us. This typically happens in the teen years. On a personal Level, this awakening led to my study of world religions which is where I learned meditation. Then one day while in a deep meditative trance I became aware of the purpose of life. This newfound knowledge terrified me to the point that I stopped meditating. My quest to understand the universe ended abruptly, replaced by the safety of daily living. It astounded me to learn later that the same had happened to millions of us.

It would have been a simple task for my critical factor to reject conflicting information. But the insights made entirely too much sense. It explained too much, and too effectively, why things are as they are. Although I had accepted this end-game understanding as truth, the outcome, however, was so frightful, I did not want to know more.

I am sure you can understand how even the simplest of fears can impact one's life in significant ways. Think of getting married. It is both a joyful and frightful proposition. Sometimes folks cannot bring themselves to take this leap. But my fear was not marriage. Soon you will understand what frightened me. Although in retrospect, it was not what I thought. Eventually, my fear transformed into a deep appreciation for the beauty and synchronicity of the grand design.

While some may find spirituality to be of great interest, others might object passionately to the very thought of spirit. I understand. My grandfather was agnostic and others of my extended family atheist. I ask that you bear with me for just a moment. This is a notably short book. The truth does not take very long to tell. Shortly you might understand my choice of words, you may even appreciate them in a new context. Or you may find my views on this topic simply become more palatable.

Regardless, you could discover, in the pages that follow, answers to questions we all share.

1. What is the meaning of life?

2. Are we alone in the universe?

3. What happens when I die?

4. Is there a God?

So, again, I invite you to set aside your critical factor, to allow the information that follows to become part of you. The outcome is a game changer.

The Architecture of the Universe

When you get ready to build a house, there are things you must do. It begins with imagining a home. Is it in the forest? On a river? Is it a single story, three story? Is it brick, stone, glass? How many rooms? Then comes the planning. What does the blueprint look like? What about the environment? Is air conditioning or heat needed? What resources does one need to build this house? How do the parts fit together? All of this is architecture. After making all decisions of architecture, only then do we prepare the site for construction and start the process of building.

Imagine preparing your favorite meal. What are the required ingredients? What are the steps to make this meal a reality? One may call this a recipe. A recipe is the architectural plan for the preparation of a meal.

Chaos is a belief based on observation. In scientific applications, chaos means uncertainty. Current scientific models explain a universe created by chaos. The promise of architecture delivers expected results. The universe I see comes from a meticulously well-planned architecture. Just like the Burj Khalifa in Dubai, a marvel of modern architecture, was not constructed by chaos.

Have you ever looked up at the night sky from a dark location? It is an amazing sight. The enormity takes one's breath away. The universe is vast, incomprehensibly huge. Scientists do not know exactly how large the universe is, but the consensus is the universe is getting bigger, expanding at a rate faster than the speed of light. Science attributes expansion to a "big bang" that occurred 13.8 billion years ago.

Science describes the “big bang,” as a tiny little invisible ball containing all matter that will ever exist. For inexplicable reasons, the tiny little invisible ball explodes. All matter, they say, came into existence at a single point with violent ferocity that flung newly created matter in all directions. One theory says the universe is expanding in an elastic bubble. When expansion reaches the limits of elasticity, they say the universe will begin to collapse.

Unfortunately, probably because of our internal belief systems, we tend to find proof that supports our suppositions. For example, if your only tool to build a house is a hammer, then all you will look for is nails. We assume the linier progression of time that governs our physical existence must apply to all things. Therefore, the universe must have a beginning and be x years old.

Mathematicians try to be more objective in their analysis. Matt Williams, a well-known journalist for Universe Today, describes an interesting mathematical theory, that energy exists in ten Dimensions[3]. I was initially excited because my own findings define ten Dimensions of reality. I was disappointed by the interpretation of data however when I saw it limited to conventional scales of measure and observation. How can we ever hope to view order through chaos? When I look up at the night sky, I see order.

Understanding the architecture of the universe removes chaos from the equation, replacing chaos with the simplicity of planned outcomes. Architecture defines the foundation upon which all related things depend, how all things connect. The universe, as I understand it, relies upon an architecture designed to achieve a specific purpose.

Let us start our journey of discovery by building upon something we know. Everyone has heard the name Albert Einstein. Albert Einstein formulated his theory of relativity as E = mc2. [4] This discovery led to the construction of the atomic bomb that devastated Japan at the end of World War 2.

His theory implies that mass and energy are the same entity and can change into one another. This implication is what I call the first of two immutable laws of the universe. Energy is neither created nor destroyed, only transformed.

You have heard the age-old conundrum, “Which came first, the chicken or the egg?” The universe, as we know it, is the egg. Let me explain.

When molecules of carbon, compressed over time by tremendous pressures of heat and earth, these molecules organize into a crystalline structure we call a diamond. Particles of physical energy, when compressed by gravity, space and time, the tremendous pressures of the universe, organize into a spiral structure we will someday recognize as consciousness.

There are two forms of energy that flow through the universe in opposite directions. Physical energy flows from Level 9 to Level 1. Level 1 is our physical universe, or the egg. Conscious energy flows from Level 1 to Level 9. Level 9 in our chicken-egg scenario is the chicken.

Let me paraphrase. Physical energy flows from Level 9 to Level 1, becoming increasingly compressed by each Level. When physical energy reaches maximum density, it transforms into conscious energy. Conscious energy then returns to Level 9, ascending each Level in turn. Does this mean the chicken came first?

The universe is conceptually a machine. It transforms physical energy into conscious energy and offers a training ground for the evolution of consciousness. For the purpose of this discussion, I call physical energy Matter and conscious energy Spirit.

Had I realized the nature of the universe earlier in life, the end game revelation I learned as a young man would not have been so frightful. I could have avoided the decades of hiatus in my education. Stay tuned for more on end game insights. For now, let us continue to lay out the big picture.

Moments ago, I mentioned Einstein's theory of relativity. Had Albert Einstein realized that the universe functions on two immutable laws, he very well may have completed his theory of everything. Scientific observations support evidence of this second law throughout time, and most recently by practitioners of quantum physics, though the implications, still, are inconceivable. I refer to the 1923 discovery of wave-particle duality[5] that cites particles behave differently when watched by a person.

The implication, not yet incorporated into the theory of wave-particle duality, I explain with the second immutable law of the Universe: Spirit animates Matter. Imagine that imagining is the first step to creating a material universe of your own making. I highly recommend reading The Secret[6] by Rhonda Byrne. The premise of Byrne's book is that thoughts can change your life. What you think indeed influences the world around you. I might amend her premise thus: Beliefs can change your life. In other words, one attracts a reality that is consistent with one's system of beliefs.

The nature of matter will become clearer in our discussion of the 1st Dimension. The nature of Spirit will become clearer in our discussion of the 9th Dimension. But first let us explore the source of all, the 10th Dimension. Then we will discuss the 9th Dimension to clarify what Spirit is, followed by a discussion of the 1st Dimension to clarify what matter is. Finally, what lies between the 1st and 9th Dimension's, for lack of a better analogy, are the engineering departments of the Universe. We will address each of these in order from 3 through 8. I did not mention Level 2 here, but it too receives due attention in a later section.

Before moving on to the 10th Dimension, let me explain one word, immutable. A theory describes something that might be true. Truth relative to current understanding. Later knowledge, insight, understanding, refine or disprove said truth. For example, the Einstein theory I quoted above assumes time to be constant. Time fluctuates in the physical universe. Spirit always perceives time with a forward momentum. This will become clearer in a moment. Einstein's theory does not account for the variability of time, nor the influence of spirit upon matter. Therefore, Einstein's theory is not immutable. It is, however, a hint of truth. Or rather, it is truth under the right conditions. Knowledge of truth is forever changing, refined by a growing understanding of rudimentary particles, time, space, gravity. Each are particles of physical energy which are bound together as the building block particle of matter.

Something immutable is not capable of change. The universe functions on two, and only two immutable laws. When in doubt, refer to the second. Each will become clearer in the pages that follow.

1. The first immutable law: Energy is neither created nor destroyed.

2. The second immutable law: Spirit animates matter.

10TH Dimension – The Source

I mentioned before that there are ten Levels of the universe. Each Level I call a Dimension, each Dimension distinguishable from adjacent Dimensions.

Level 10 is the most unique of all Levels of reality because it defies explanation. Fortunately, imagination is a handy tool to know the unknowable. Imagine you are walking on a vast ocean, nothing but water and sky for as far as you can see. Smooth water at your feet, a gentle breeze brushes your face. In our metaphor Level 10 is water and air.

To complete this metaphor, you must now do three things. First, remove yourself from the picture. You cannot exist on Level 10. Second, mix all the air and water together so that it appears as one thing. Neither air, nor water. You might make it a fog with no top, no bottom, no here, no there. It has no beginning, no ending.

And now, here is the third thing we must change. Mentally erase the fog. Fog is a thing, and things do not exist on Level 10. You will see why in a moment. The energy of Fog still exists, but you have no tools that can perceive it.

Still, using the fog metaphor of air and water, we might find understanding. The fog, we said, is one thing. That one thing is an infinite number of elemental particles of energy. I call this particle On. An On particle is like a droplet of water in our Level 10 fog. The air, which is not water, we call simply, not On.

So, Level 10 is an endless sea of On particles each of which might exist in one of two states. On, or not On, each infinite and equally balanced.

There are reasons Level 10 is unknowable. We measure our lives by the steps we take, and the time required to take them. Unfortunately, neither time nor space exists on Level 10. How can something be timeless when time is a linear concept measured by the age of nothing. How can something be vast when vast is a spatial concept and Level 10 occupies no space?

You see, time and space are both particles of energy, each built from multiple On particles, bound and balanced by… Well, we will get to the force of Attraction in a moment.

On is the most elemental building block particle of energy. I give it this name because of my engineering background. Digital computers are based on a concept of duality. Information is a collection of bits within the computer's memory, each bit having one of two states. A bit is on, or a bit is off. Similarly, a particle of On has duality; it is On, or it is not On.

A particle of On, in simplest terms, is a container. A container which is On, or not On. Like a black glass or white glass, both containers, each On particle is a container. Each container, partially filled with a force, or energy, called Attraction, which may have positive or negative qualities. In other words, push and pull.

We all understand attraction. You see someone you like; you feel motivated to interact. You see someone you dislike; you feel motivated to avoid. Others you might see cause a feeling of indifference, motivating you to take no action.

Think of two magnets. Aligning the north pole to south pole causes two magnets in proximity to attract. Positioning north to north, or south to south causes the magnets to push away or repulse one another.

These are two examples of Attraction in action.

On the particle Level however, Attraction exists only within its On container. In other words, the On particle owns the force within it. Attraction cannot escape its container.

Although it may never escape the On particle that houses it, Attraction may push upon its container in an expansive manner or pull upon its container in a contracting manner. It is the pull characteristic that I call Attraction, and the push aspect then is Not Attraction. The force within a container interacts with other same state containers, i.e., On or not On. Using our fog analogy, water may interact with water and air may interact with air. Water and air may not interact with one another. On and not On each do not exist to the other.

The container, On, along with the force it envelops, Attraction, is the base particle of energy.

If Attraction of one On particle pushes upon its container, and another same state On particle pulls upon its container, the two On particles appear to attract one another. Attraction causes movement, and movement demands space. Space does not exist on Level 10. Rather than creating space to allow movement, one On particle changes states, i.e., switching from On to not On. The Attraction force of the remaining On particle cannot interact with the Attraction force of a particle that is not On. Therefore, there is no movement.

However, the force of Attraction within its On container continues to exist in a state of balance. It neither pushes nor pulls upon its container. It is only proximity of On particles that allows interaction of Attraction forces. Of course, proximity also infers space, which again, does not exist on Level 10.

Why does space not exist on Level 10? Because space is a particle of energy made of multiple On particles, bound and balanced by force of Attraction. Particles of On cannot bind on Level 10. Think of Level 10 as an endless and inexhaustible ocean of On particles, perfectly balanced On and Not On, perfectly balance force of Attraction and Not Attraction. Balance prevents interaction.

Imagine a teetertotter, perfectly balanced by the weight of two people balanced on opposite ends of the fulcrum. Balance prevents interaction. Movement requires a decision by one of these opposing forces. Level 10 is not capable of deciding. Because only consciousness can decide. Consciousness does not exist on Level 10. Because Consciousness is a particle of energy made of multiple On particles, bound and balanced by force of Attraction.

Level 10 occupies no space, it has no form, no mass, no awareness. It is neutral, balanced. It just is. I call this ocean The Source. Conceptually, Level 10 is the ultimate battery of infinite potential energy.

The next chapter will discuss the characteristics of Level 9. Because Level 10 is inexhaustible, it supports an infinite number of universes, each universe consisting of nine Dimensions or Levels. The lower Levels, 8 through 1, are each subjugate to higher Levels.

Level 10 fuels the expansion of all universes and replenished by circular energy. Circular energy will become clearer in a moment. Level 10 is forever balanced, having no dominion nor expectation.

Except that forever infers time and particles of time do not exist on Level 10. Because time, like space, is a particle of energy made from multiple On particles, bound and balanced by force of Attraction.

Discrete On particles exist only on Level 10. They never combine into anything else because all of Level 10 is, and forever, perfectly balanced.

9TH Dimension – God Consciousness

Earlier I mentioned that the universe is a training ground for the evolution of consciousness. Consciousness is born in Level 1 and grows through multiple Dimensions of maturity before arriving at Level 9. Level 9 is the accumulated experience of all consciousness of the universe. Given that the physical Dimension occupies the first two Levels, so-called Heaven begins at Level 3. My Christian, Jewish, and Islam brethren would call the 9th Dimension 7th Heaven. In such religions 7th Heaven is where the Throne of God[7] rests.

I call the 9th Dimension God Consciousness.

God Consciousness, I think, is more descriptive than the single word God. God implies in my mind an old man with a long gray beard, white and blue flowing robe, and a lightning bolt staff to zap the wicked and unworthy. Oh, wait. Or was that Zeus?

God Consciousness plays a vital role in the universe. It extracts On particles from Level 10, transforming them by force of will into particles of physical energy. The base particle of all physical energy is the Duon. A Duon is two On particles of same state, bound and balanced by force of Attraction. Multiple Duon particles combine to form the myriad of building block particles of the Universe. Remember the second immutable law of the universe: Spirit animates matter. God Consciousness is an ultrahigh dose of concentrated spirit.

By shaping the very essence of matter, God Consciousness defines the boundaries, the nature, and limitations of all matter.

Consider this creation story: The voice of God permeated the void. Let there be Space that you may stand upon. Let there be time that you may measure your progress. Let there be light that you may see the path that leads home.

Particles of physical energy form and coalesce, pressing downward through heaven and earth. Particles of space and time join in a continuum chorus. Particles of gravity pull everything into alignment. Particles of Light spark furnaces of the universe to illuminate consciousness.

Finally, the universe, heavy with its myriad of physical energies, spat forth consciousness from its birth canals. Consciousness coalesced and took on physical forms to better express itself. The training camp was open for business. Chicken and egg, right? Or in biblical terms, Alpha (Level 1 consciousness) and Omega (Level 9 consciousness).

Now that the universe already exists, the role of God Consciousness is “master” builder of the universe. He/She/It assures us lowly beings have all the Lego blocks we need to evolve correctly. And there are no rules to say Level 9 can have only one set of 8 Dimensions under it.

If the universe were perfectly balanced, it could not exist. A perfectly balanced universe would be indistinguishable from the Source. To achieve a state of unbalance, the number of On particles within the universe cannot equal the number of not On particles. The difference, rounded to ten significant digits, is 1.6180339887 to 1. You may recognize this number as the golden ratio, aka phi, represented by the Greek letter (φ). The golden ratio is the single factor which gives rise to the possibility of a Trion (three bound On particles), the building block particle of conscious energy.

The problem is this. God Consciousness extracts equally On and not On particles from the source. The source continues in a state of infinite balance. The transformation of energy into Duon particles must also remain balanced. But as I said earlier, the universe is out of balance by a factor of phi. The solution for God Consciousness is to create two universes. One Universe constructed primarily of On particles, the other not On. The second universe is the anti-universe of the first.

Opposites such as anti can be tricky, and here is the reason. If a particle of On had the ability of thought, it would have only two. I am On. The other is not. So, let me ask you this. Which is the "real" universe, and which is the "anti" universe? The answer is perspective. It Depends on which one you live in. I will explain better in the discussion of Level 1, keyword basketball. Keep an eye out for this.

The job of God Consciousness entails an endless list of energy molding and transformation tasks. Based upon its accumulated experience it must plan scenarios to foster the evolution of consciousness and distribute physical energy into at least two universes, each to achieve planned outcomes.

Level 9 is the only Level where consciousness can touch the Source. All physical energy that enters the universe flows through God Consciousness. You might therefore become aware that the body of God Consciousness encompasses the entirety of each two-universe system that it supports.

I do not know if there is an annual multiverse convention of Level 9 leaders. But who has time for that? I suppose each of us will find this answer when we arrive at Level 9.

If it freaks you out that you will one day become God, I can offer you this comfort. Anyone reading this is still on Level 1. It took me a while to realize this. You and I have seven more Levels to ascend before we receive an invitation to join with God Consciousness. This is the ultimate marriage. Can you imagine the symbology implied here by the marriage of a catholic nun to Jesus? All life, as we know it, is a metaphor for spiritual reality. When you receive this inevitable invitation from God Consciousness, you will be ready. Or you can decline and remain forever on Level 8. The choice is yours. More about this choice in the discussion of Level 8.

One final thought before I close this Level 9 discussion. I said that Level 9 is the only Level that can touch the Source. The general rule here is consistent throughout the Universe. Conscious energy can figuratively "touch" Levels of the universe one up and two down. This means that God Consciousness can "talk" to the source, and to Levels 8 and 7. Level 4 can "talk" to Levels 5, 3 and 2, etcetera. Anyone on Earth speaking with higher spirit is communicating with a Level 3 spirit, or Level 4 spirit while in a deep state of trance. Level 3 spirit typically will not have the skill to reach back two Levels, and majority of Level 1 spirit lacking the skill to consciously touch Level two. The exceptions are more highly evolved. These "higher" spirits may or not be following orders from higher up. Free will and all. You get this, right?

What does your belief system allow you to think about this? Yes, I do mean allow. This is how powerful your beliefs are. They filter information, discarding or changing context in ways that support core beliefs. The only thing more powerful than beliefs is imagination. More on this later.

It makes me wonder if Level 9 God Consciousness is subject to the same rules as consciousness on lower Levels. He/She/It has touched every particle of physical energy in the entire universe just as our own individual consciousness has touched every cell of our own body. The cells of our body appear autonomous yet function as a cohesive unit serving the whole. Like a colony of ants or a hive of bees. All physical life is a metaphor for spiritual reality. We will learn more about this in a moment.

I close the discussion of the 9th Dimension with this aphorism for your consideration: My body is a gift from God to clothe and protect me on my journey home. How could it be otherwise? God Consciousness created the physical energy that transformed into my physical body.

1ST DIMENSION – The Physical Universe

The first Dimension, aka the physical universe, is the destination for all particles of physical energy. All physical energy arriving here passed through each of the higher Dimensions, further sculpted by the consciousness of those Levels. The second Dimension, aka the astral plane, or the void, or zero-point energy, is a staging area for intangible energy. Intangible physical energy undergoes a final transformation when entering the Level 1 physical universe.

The intent of higher consciousness exists in this field of intangible energy in aggregate. Like any physical body, most functionality is on autopilot, but intervention can alter the outcome. Breathing might be a good analogy. By force of will, you can stop breathing. But once you lose focus or pass out from lack of oxygen, the body resumes its normal function. It is the same with intangible energy.

This intangible energy I speak of is Level 2. It is an integral part of the physical universe that is manifested on Level 1. More on Level 2 in a moment.

The influx of Duon (physical) energy into the Level 1 Dimension causes expansion. Newly formed nebula on the leading edge of the universe may never come to our attention because the universe expands faster than the speed of light. The behavior of light, which is the basis of our observations, receives influence by particles of time, space, and gravity, which together form the tapestry of the physical universe.

The reason for the expansion of the physical universe is to create new black holes. The method, as we already discussed, is the manipulation of Duon energy by higher Consciousness. Higher meaning higher than Level 1. It is all part of the plan, the architecture of the Universe.

A black hole is like a baker's oven, or the blast furnace of a metallurgist. Mix all the ingredients together, put them in the oven, bake at 1.4 x 10-14 Kelvin (the scientifically calculated temperature of a black hole) for irrelevant duration (time is just a particle consumed by the black hole), and out pops a fresh new Trion (3 On particles). Radical Duon particles also escape back into Level 1. A radical Duon is one in which the force of Attraction exerted by its two base particles is not in balance. Particles of On may not exist independently outside Level 10. When the splitting, mixing, and blending of Duon particles in a black hole result in a stray On particle, Level 10 absorbs it. Level 10 stays in balance by collecting offsetting On particles from Level 9.

The construction of particles I call Trion Receptors, and other unstable particles that appear throughout the Universe, require unbalanced Duon particles. I will follow up on Trion Receptors in a moment. First, however, what is a Trion?

A Trion is the basic building block particle of consciousness. This form of energy is self-aware. Its construction is three particles of On, two On and one not On, or its inverse, one On and two not. A black hole outputs particles of consciousness in both constructs to achieve balance and minimize the number of radical On particles.

The uniqueness factor of a Trion is not really the On configuration. Rather, the combined force of Attraction and not Attraction causes the life seeking quality of consciousness. The magical number phi comes into play here. The majority Attraction force comes from the dominate On. The balance from the anti-On, or not On. This lack of balance creates an internal perceptual experience of duality. Duality, and the resulting pursuit of balance caused by duality, is the driving force of spirit and exists on an elemental Level.

In the discussion of Level 10 I used an impossible scenario to describe the push/pull interaction of Attraction and the impact it has upon its container. This is an active scenario in Trion particles. A Trion particle always has two On containers in the same state. The Pull candidate switches states from On to Not, the pattern then repeating with the now two same state particles. A Trion particle is always in transition. The polarity of Attraction, i.e., push/pull, is also in flux, spinning as it constantly shifts to find stasis.

Imagine three basketballs bound together, one inert and two actively pressing against one another; one pushing, one pulling. The active balls cannot interact with the inert ball. The pull ball suddenly shifts to an inert state. Now, the push ball is the inert ball and the other two are actively interacting. And then this shift happens again, and again, and again. Thus is the perpetual motion of spirit seeking balance.

Conscious energy has the same construct in both On based and not On based universes. Both view the dominate On state of the universe as active, and the opposite state as anti. Scientists have a name for anti-based physical energy. They call it dark matter.

A single Trion particle can experience sensation, is self-aware, and by its nature life-seeking. By life seeking I mean expressing itself through physical animation. Spirit animates matter. The collection of experience results.

However, a single Trion particle does not have sufficient Attraction to attach itself to a physical form. Without a physical form it instantly ascends to Level 2. Its awareness factor is limited to the sense of duality. To increase the force of Attraction, groups of compatible Trion particles on Level 2 combine, or join, into a single conscious entity, or spirit. Still, to occupy a physical form, the spirit must find a physical form equipped with a special particle called Trion Receptors.

Trion Receptors are unique particles, partially spirit, partially matter. They bond Level 2 spirit with Level 1 matter. An unattached Trion Receptor exists in Level 2 until it binds with downward energy.

Spirit attracts compatible Duon energy on Level 2, including Trion Receptors, and rides the downward flow of energy into its first incarnation. Once spirit and physical unite the Trion Receptors get sealed, or rather, become balanced. Balance prevents union with another spirit. Spirit now animates the matter that hosts it on Level 1, i.e., spirit lives in the host body and moves about the physical universe. Imagine now, we can gallivant about the universe, bumping into things, and oops, we should not have gone there. Experience results.

The physical universe provides an adequate supply of Trion receptors to accommodate the number of spirits needing these receptors. Incarnation results from this Trion/Duon union. Spirit grows by using both techniques, physical union and Trion joining. Each joining increases the Attraction force which allows spirit to form a union with more sophisticated physical forms, thus improving the quality-of-life experience accumulated through each incarnation cycle.

How many stars does an ameba bump into before it becomes a person? How many Trion particles must a spirit have before it becomes a person?

Joining is a non-physical act thus occurs on Level 2. Level 2 is the transition zone for any spirit where joining may occur between incarnation cycles. Imagine Adam's culture where all members were frequent visitors of Level 2, and all joined at once into a new super spirit.

With adequate experience, a spirit breaks free from this first-Dimension space-time continuum.

Most adequately evolved spirits entering Level 2 will instantly "see the light", or the pathway to Level 3. Spirit may need a small period of adjustment at Level 2 before attraction to Level 3 is possible. A strong emotional tie to the physical or inadequate experience will push spirit downward to continue another Level 1 incarnation cycle.

I know you have heard and considered this before. Do you believe in reincarnation? The accumulation of experience is the only method available to us to correct mistaken beliefs. One may not change the nature of the universe by wishing it were not so. In other words, knowledge is power, and knowledge accumulates through experience. Let us put an evolution spin on this. The Universe gives you all the time you need to get it right.

Earlier I referred to the leading edge of the universe. I have concluded that the universe has one of two forms. It is spiral, or it is spherical. Or multiple spirals within a sphere. My reason for suspecting a spiral configuration has to do with the golden ratio. A spiral gets wider by a factor of phi for every 90 degrees of expansion. The golden ratio exists in the very fabric of physical energy that floods the universe. How can it not organize in a spiral configuration? Spherical, because the universe is in a continual state of unbalance. Unbalance, over time, pushes equally in all directions.

I assume both must be true. Thus, the universe may have multiple spirals within an expanding sphere.

The leading edge of the Level 1 universe exists on every boundary surface of the entire universe. There must be a boundary because the entirety of the nine Level universe floats in a sea of Level 10. To reframe philosophically, a boundary exists to delineate something from nothing.

One might say beyond the boundary is nothing. Nothing is the perfect word because physical energy, or Duon particles, do not exist on Level 10. An On particle is not a thing. Only Duon energy might become tangible, i.e., a thing. The boundary prevents the exchange of Duon and On particles between Levels 1 and 10. Except for a stray On particle absorbed by Level 10 from a black hole, all energy reabsorbed by The Source is through Level 9 in the form of retired Trion particles broken down into their elemental On particles, i.e., circular energy. These retired Trion particles are redundant experience. God Consciousness retains all experience collected through evolution.

Restating, the physical universe serves two functions. First the transformation of Duon energy into Trion Energy. Second, to foster the evolution of spirit. Without spirit to explore matter, what purpose could matter serve?

This leaves me wondering why, as a spirit incarnate, I do not readily remember my past life experience. The answer is this. Trion Receptors permit a one-way flow of experience from body to spirit. Communing with one's spirit self is possible with focused effort, such as meditation or hypnosis. This implies that the unconscious mind connects with spirit and this connection contributes to our overall system of beliefs. Beliefs function on an unconscious Level.

One's own spirit, however, is not the sole influencer of a belief system. We will see later how predisposition is a characteristic of the physical body, included in our DNA by higher spirit influence. DNA joins, like a joining of two souls, and passed from parent to child. Also, our thoughts and behaviors alter the content of our belief systems, which then adds to the experience of spirit.

Earlier I said that spirit can reach one Level up and two down. Of course, there is no "down" from Level 1. However, all Level 1 spirit has a connection with Level 2, the Dimension of intangible energy. It is our belief in our physical reality that isolates us from the accumulated experience of spirit, and from the full potential of intangible Level 2 energy.

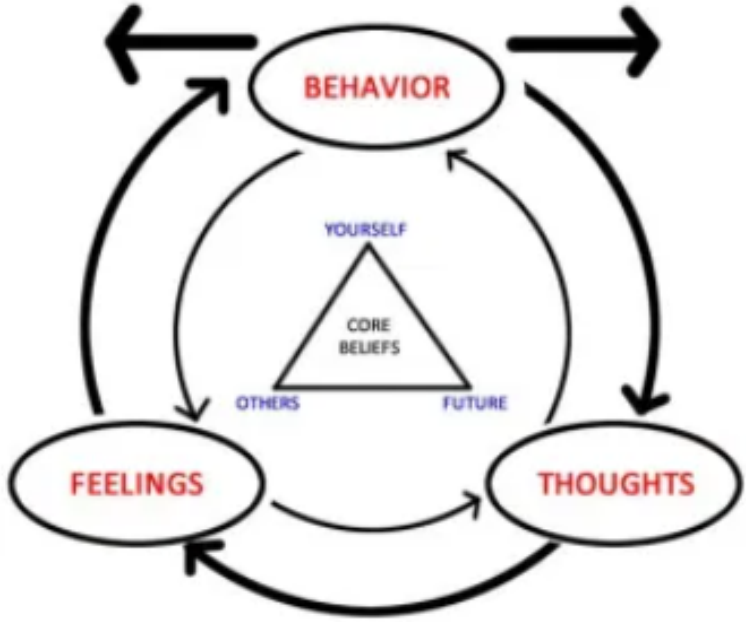

Susan Gale, a contemporary inspirational writer, wrote this: "The only things you can take with you when you leave this world are, the things you've packed inside your heart."

And this is true. Intent is what shapes the universe and drives our collection of experience. Knowledge is the means to this end, thus important in building our base of experience. But in the end, of utmost importance is how we feel about the process and outcome of our experience. Intent always carries with it an emotional gravity, one that has a measurable impact on the emotional maturity of spirit.

There seems to be an underlying motivation behind all intent. In the discussion of Trion energy above, it might be clear that a Trion particle is bound by Attraction forces derived from both On and not On particles, creating a belief of duality by Spirit. The motivation implied here is balance, which is somehow confused as a need to become pure through an imagined process of purification. This manifest as attitude; Purge the evil, restore balance. Evil is merely a factor that is contrary to the preference of Spirit. Balance is the true goal. Experience is the outcome. Experience alters emotional maturity, hopefully in the preferred direction.

A psychological modality called Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT) describes this conceptual framework: Think, feel, act. What we think affects how we feel. How we feel impacts how we act. How we act influences what we think. The inverse is also true as illustrated below.

Think, Feel, Act Cycle

This pattern, motivated by the internal drive to achieve balance, i.e., purification, manifests itself in extreme ways, from altruism to prejudice. Emotional maturity refines core beliefs. When purification of core beliefs matures, thoughts, feelings, and behavior are congruent. You will find a soul such as this on Level 8. In the meantime, we all continue to evolve to the best of our abilities.

This pattern theorized by CBT is the framework of consciousness that permeates the nine “living” Dimensions of reality. We as mortal humans really do indeed have much in common with angels.

2ND DIMENSION – The Astral Plane

Level 2 is a magical realm of - flux. It permeates the Level 1 universe. It is physical energy in wait, i.e., intangible energy. Although preprogrammed to be what it is supposed to be, Level 2 energy is potentially anything desired, provided the expected observation is consistent with the force of Attraction that binds all the rudimentary particles.

Level 2 energy is infinite in that it has not yet bound to the tapestry of Level 1 space and time. It has particles of time, used by consciousness to measure progress of experience. It has particles of space, used by consciousness to stand apart from all things else. It has particles of light that illuminate the path of consciousness. It is potentially all things that will be. Left alone this physical energy will flow into the Level 1 universe, sustaining it and expanding it. When Level 2 energy enters the physical universe at its physical boundaries, expansion occurs with a big bang. The boundary moves outward. Physical energy transforms. The big bang theorized by top minds of the scientific community is truly a never-ending process.[8] Like an On particle, the physical universe is a container. It contains physical matter.

On a side note, we are fortunate to see as much as 14.6 billion years of the physical universe. Does anyone find it strange that we can see more of the universe than the time elapsed from the big bang? We measure one year as one revolution of Earth around the sun. What was the measure of time before Earth existed? The answer is Trion time, i.e., the chronological progression of time that separates experience. But now, on Level 1, we have learned to measure our progress based on external, or physical time. This external basis of measure will not change until we reach Level 5.

Resuming our conversation, the intervention of consciousness causes physical energy on Level 2 to assume an observable state. Once separated from the focus of conscious intervention, these particles of quantum matter revert to their native state of flux captured again by the wave of downward flow.

Energy is neither created nor destroyed, only transformed. Transformation of energy is the subject of magic. Magic, in other words, is the transformation of energy under the direction of consciousness. Thus, magic is very real. It just requires a highly evolved spirit. Few of which live in the Level 1 universe. Level 3 pulls, by force of attraction, a sufficiently evolved spirit onto this higher Level.

Science also deals with the transformation of energy. Knowledge and experience are boundaries to the capabilities of both science and magic.

Magic is distinguishable from science in one regard. Magical transformation results directly by intent of spirit tapping the potential of intangible energy. It pulls upon the force of attraction to bring matter into observation. Scientific transformation results indirectly by intent of spirit by pitting matter against matter. Science pushes upon the force of attraction to change the observable characteristics of matter. The matter involved in the execution of science may be tangible or intangible. Quantum physics is the study of intangible Level 2 energy.

A conscious spirit on Level 1 may enter Level 2 in two circumstances.

1. With practiced concentration a spirit can project awareness onto Level 2 while still anchored to its physical body by Trion receptors. Loss of Level 2 focus will "zap" spirit's awareness back into body. This is astral projection, a topic supporting volumes of literature.

2. Spirit has sufficiently evolved to escape the gravity of Level 1 space-time. Death causes a physical body to shed its spirit passenger. If spirit has consciously walked the hallways of Level 2 while still tied to a physical body, or spirit has evolved sufficiently to be conscious of decision in Level 2, ascending to Level 3 may be a choice.

When consciousness resides on Level 2, souls may join. Might the joining of souls still hosted by physical body be possible? What do you think would happen to all those physical bodies previously connected to a spirit? The Trion receptors that bind spirit to matter are quantum particles. In a normal scenario, the body dies, the physical body releases its bond with Trion receptors, and the Trion receptors revert to their quantum state along with Spirit. This is a measurable loss of physical weight at time of separation. The loss of physical connection of Trion receptors pulls spirit onto Level 2, sometimes unwillingly.

With soul joining, however, with spirit still attached to the body, the process is vastly different. The joining of spirit breaks the connection with Trion receptors on the spirit side while physical body connection persists. Without the spirit connection, Trion receptors revert to their Level 2 state. The body of these joined spirits, still attached to Trion receptors, also reverts to Level 2. This might be common for highly advanced cultures, such as the one described by Adam, where Level 2 becomes a group experience. Could this explain the disappearance of the Anasazi population?[9] Might this process explain a percentage of disappearances of couples?

Otherwise, each spirit begins its search for a new vessel to host its continued evolutionary growth. Such a spirit will attract potential compatible realities to itself, then ride the downward flow of energy into incarnation. A downward decision by a more evolved soul is similar. Otherwise, the evolved soul gives in to the force of attraction exerted upon it by Level 3.

When a spirit first enters Level 2 from Level 1, no longer bound to the gravity of space-time, there is a sensation of floating. Time is the first thing that comes to one's perception. Without the influence of time particles on one's experience, one could not be aware of arriving, departing, or anything in between. So, the passage of time continues to be part of what we perceive.

One prevalent theory here on Earth is that life is an emergent property of physical complexity. In their belief system, life ceases to exist when the body dies. These folks too will arrive at Level two when the physical body expels its hosted spirit. It might take a bit longer than normal for these souls to become aware of time. Eventually, time will overwhelm their incorrect belief and pull them back onto the path of evolution.

Spirit will next become aware of light. Light may illuminate the path to Level 3. Alternatively, spirits may perceive light as the light of the physical universe, causing one to believe they occupy the same space as their physical body. A spirit no longer tied to a physical body may choose to remain in Level 2 for a time, until making a different choice. A choice is inevitable because no spirit "lives" in Level 2 indefinitely. Level 2 is a transition zone. Attraction will pull upon spirit into Level 3 or Level 1, depending upon spirit's readiness to ascend. A spirit still tied to Level 1 by Trion receptors may remain on Level 2 only with Level 2 focus. Focus is a choice, without which, attraction to Level 1 prevails.

Awareness of space comes next. At this point spirit may move about the Level 2 universe as I describe below.

Before I move on, let me remind you that spirit may reach up on Level or down two. But of course, there is only one Level below Level 2. Those on Level 1 may perceive a Level 2 spirit as a ghost. It would take tremendous skill for a ghost to manifest anything on Level 1 beyond a thought. Skill demands experience and experience causes evolution. The path of evolution leads to Level 3. The lack of emotional maturity nudges spirit toward another Level 1 incarnation. Therefore Level 2 hosts fewer ghosts than one might imagine.

Whether by projection or disembodiment, one moves about Level 2 at the speed of thought. One could move to the very boundary of the universe to bear witness to expansion as it unfolds or ride the Gulf Stream as it flows through the Earth. All this, however, is personal experience. The energy around you exists only for you, and only for so long as you pay attention.

Shared experience with another spirit while on Level 2 is possible in two scenarios.

1. It requires connection with a Level 3 or Level 4 spirit who reaches down to touch you. A Level 3 spirit typically does not have the skill to reach two Levels down. More than likely any shared experience on Level 2 will be with spirit on Level 4.

2. A strong emotional connection enables communication between Level 3 spirit and its downward soul group members, or between soul group members who can touch Level 2.

There are two reasons multi-Level communication might take place. First is to increase the attraction that pulls a Level 2 spirit into Level 3. Second is to share knowledge to advance a Level 1 spirit who has consciously touched Level 2. The latter may also occur in dreams. The practice of lucid dreaming helps one to remember these unconscious connections.

A soul group is two or more compatible souls that travel the path of evolution together. The joining of two souls will typically be among members of the same soul group. Can you see how marriage on earth is a practice run for soul joining? Joining can be a frightful concept if one perceives they must give up their identity. While ignorance permits joining of souls on the lower end of the evolution scale, joining on the higher end requires emotional maturity. Love and trust are factors of emotional maturity. Joining does not diminish one's identity. It adds to it. You retain all that you were, plus much more. It is the combination of two energy forces. On a side note, joining of soul knows no gender. All consciousness is both male and female. Duality.

THE 3RD DIMENSION.

The third Dimension is the magical kingdom of Heaven. I call it magical because on this Level spirit learns to mold energy to the desires of spirit. This is the realm of alchemy. There is a constant influx of physical energy into Level 3 where it undergoes a practice transformation by Level 3 residents before pressing onto Level 2 by gravity of newly arrived energy. Level 3 is as infinite, in terms of time and space, as allowed by the internal belief systems of its residents.

My understanding of Level 3 is not unique among us Level 1 souls. The physical energy touched by a Level 3 spirit keeps characteristics of this heavenly influence. One cannot touch energy, physically or mentally, without altering it. Physical energy on the first Dimension carries a shadow of the desire that touched it in heaven. These shadows inhabit our environment, and even our bodies as Level 1 residents. They seep into our imagination, making their mark on our own desires. A famous quote I know you have heard, “on Earth as it is in Heaven.” Where do you think the idea of heaven originated? No need to worry too much about this. It is analogous to speaking with another person and becoming inspired by something they say. The choice to act or not belongs to the hosted spirit.

One might think of pre-sentient consciousness as infancy, and ascension to Level 3 as high school graduation. That makes Level 3 our college years. By the time a spirit leaves Level 3 on its homeward journey of evolution it has become an expert in transformation. Joining of spirit continues to be a growth tool, as it was on Level 2, where the resources of two combine into something greater than both. Spirit will need all the experience it can collect to reach the emotional maturity necessary to become a functional member of Level 4. One gains experience on Level 3 by transforming Level 3 physical energy into Level 3 realities, and by joining with other Level 3 spirits.

Level 3 is where the concept of heaven and hell comes from. What kind of reality might you spin up for yourself? Have you ever wondered whether spirit in heaven has a body? Expressing ourselves through a physical form is a common experience shared by all, something learned on Level 1. This practice continues for those on Level 3. Level 3 residents can construct physical forms for themselves, empowering them to interact with Level 3 realities; Trion receptors not needed. Imagination is the only limiting factor in the physical appearance of these forms. Core beliefs and higher-Level influence define the boundaries of imagination, unless imagination reaches beyond the boundaries of core beliefs.

The force of attraction will pull a Level 3 soul onto Level 4 when knowledge, experience and emotional maturity are manifest adequately. Graduation to Level 4 comes when emotional maturity replaces self-desires with selfless desires that benefit the lower universe.

How long will you attend this Level 3 college before joining the working ranks of Level 4?

THE 4TH DIMENSION.

Just as we Level 1 mortals aspire to ascend to Level 3, spirit on Level 3 works diligently to increase experience, skill, and emotional maturity with the goal of ascending to Level 4.

Residents of Level 4 are the architects of evolution. They influence descending physical energy to manifest as opportunity in the lives of Level 3 and Level 1 spirit. I like to think of Level 4 spirit as prayer masters. They can reach down two Levels, i.e., to Level 2, where they hear dreams and prayers of deep concentration. They answer by transforming the flow of physical energy in ways that create opportunities for residents of Levels 1 and 3. Of course these downward spirits must choose to act on the opportunity to achieve the desired outcome.

Level 4 fine tunes physical energy to make course corrections to perfect the training ground for newly born spirit. Recall that a new spirit is born from a black hole and must connect to a physical body to evolve. There must be a path that enables spirit to incarnate repeatedly into increasingly more complex physical forms.

Whereas the 5th Dimension creates the laws of the physical universe, the 4th Dimension molds physical energy to create the substance and form of the physical universe in ways that support the evolution of spirit.

Level 4 refines environmental factors to correct evolutionary paths that have become stagnant or move in the wrong direction. I wonder if global warming is one of these corrective actions.

They also create new opportunities to spring evolution in the forward direction. With the help of Level 4, it might be possible for an advanced Level 1 culture to ascend to Level 3 as one. Such may have already happened in Earth's ancient past. Remember Adam's story at the beginning of this book? How often has fiction predated reality? Does anyone remember Dick Tracy? He was a super detective in television of the 1960's, like Thomas Magnum. Dick Tracy wore an iPhone on his wrist[10]. Fiction writers on Level 1 are often the first to perceive the unfolding plans of Level 4 architects.

Graduating from Level 4 is like obtaining an advanced degree in physics. A phycological shift occurs here. Or rather, the belief of time shifts when a soul ascends to Level 5. Spirit shifts from an external measure of time to an internal measure.

THE 5TH DIMENSION.

Residents of Levels 5 are the architects of the physical universe. Their primary focus is the expanding universe. They precondition physical energy to becomes stars, planets, galaxies, black holes, etcetera, and everything contained within and around. Their secondary focus is maintenance of the existing universe.

Level 5 effort defines the boundaries within which Level 4 must work. I like to think of Level 5 residents as experts on the topic of the physical universe, for it is they who create the mathematics of the universe.

They say love is what makes the world go round. I believe this to be true. Love is the most powerful manifestation of the force of Attraction. Without love for spirits evolving on lower Levels, the environments needed to sustain life at Level 1 would never come to be. Love and gravity are similar; gravity being the Duon manifestation and love being the Trion manifestation. And thus, love brings into alignment particles of gravity working in concert with particles of space and particles of time. Love makes the world go round. Coincidentally, space, time, and gravity, working in concert, are known by theologians as the holy trinity. They are everywhere, and each particle touched by the Spirit and will of God consciousness.

It might be interesting to consider that there are two holy trinities. For physical energy, as I said, is time, space, and gravity. For conscious energy, it is time, space, and light. Light in spirit context means illumination or enlightenment.

Back to point, 5th Dimension residents cause the spin of the Earth. Spirit animates matter. Spirits of the 5th Dimension infuses Duon particles with intent. And so, the Earth spins. Spirit animates matter. Of course, the mathematics that describe the spin of the Earth derive from the physical laws of the universe, created by the 5th Dimension; Observational laws such as conservation of energy, laws of motion; Laws that govern intangible physical energy. As I mentioned previously, Level 2 is a sea of intangible energy, waiting to blossom into reality. This form of energy permeates Levels 2, 3 and 4 under the conservatorship of Level 5.

Joining the 5th Dimension requires a shift of awareness by Level 4 spirit. Time, space, and gravity exist on higher Dimensions. But it is Level 5 that brings them together as a cohesive group of complex Duon particles. Spirit on Levels below the 5th Dimension base awareness and experience on Duon particles of time. Spirit on the fifth-Dimension experience time differently. Particles of time used in the construction of Trion energy give spirit its orientation of time. Level 5 spirit has successfully shifted the perceptional experience of time from an external measure to an internal measure. It is no longer necessary to attach one's consciousness to a physical body for continued evolution.

I theorize that one could remain rooted in the first Dimension with a mind functioning on the fourth. Although limitations imposed by a first-Dimension body makes this unlikely, yet possible. I suspect Jesus Christ, Muhammed, Buddha, were fourth Dimension souls manifest in a first-Dimension body. More recent candidates for this list might include Gandhi and Mother Theresa. Such a being on Level 1 would truly be a magician. I know that a Level 3 resident does not have sufficient knowledge to do the same. The time perspective demanded to exist on Level 5 makes physical existence on lower Levels impractical.

THE 6TH DIMENSION.

Level 6 residents are the architects of embedded knowledge. This is knowledge encoded into the very fabric of life. Imagine a baby being born without knowing how to suckle. It would die. Unless we as individuals discover a bidirectional flow of information between body and soul, we Level 1 spirits limit our perceptual experiences to the boundaries of our core beliefs, learned knowledge, plus embedded knowledge. All instincts are derived from embedded knowledge. This type of knowledge gets embedded into the particles of energy that will become life forms. Level 7 preconditions life forms that appear throughout the Universe, and Level 6 works within the confines of Level 7 constructs.

The second aspect of Level 6 work is autonomous systems, i.e., those systems that know how to function independently in a living body. Think of an amoeba. It is a single cell organism that knows how to move about and function without a brain or nervous system. The amoeba example may help you to realize that embedded knowledge is not cellular but subatomic. Rather, it is quantum knowledge.

A third type of embedded knowledge impacts core beliefs. A percentage of birth Level core beliefs comes from the spirit that occupies in the physical body. The balance conditioned by Level 6 into the energy that will become living organisms. When Level 1 spirit searches for an incarnation host, it attracts energy preconditioned to meet the goals and life experience needs of spirit.

Multigenerational habits and attitudes have roots in the socialization of a living creature. Although, attitudes and predisposition to certain beliefs may also be rooted with Level 6 programming of energy that will host living souls. Embedded knowledge finds its way into the DNA of life forms and passes from parent to child.

Imagine the challenge to change core beliefs embedded on a quantum Level implanted by higher consciousness. Is racial prejudice, for example, multi-generational because we learn this? How would you explain those taught this bias yet rejected it? The answer is Level 6 predisposition. The purpose of life is evolution of spirit through experience. Level 6 works with Duon energy preconditioned by higher Levels of consciousness. Who is to say, from a higher perspective, what is right and wrong? Who is to judge the experience requirements of an individual Soul to further its evolution?

THE 7TH DIMENSION.

Level 7 residents are the social engineers of the universe. They precondition matter to become forms that support life. Without these forms spirit energy could not join with physical energy. Without these forms spirit energy could not touch physical energy. Without these forms physical energy would remain intangible to any spirit. Spirit must express itself through physical energy to gain experience, to grow, to evolve. Because the beings of Level 8 exist as opposites, duality appears in the particles of physical energy that are available to Level 7. Imagine the diversity of physical forms formulated here to accommodate the contrast imposed by duality.

THE 8TH DIMENSION.

All the while residents of these middle Levels continue to evolve upward with the goal of purification. One achieves purification by joining into Level 8. This occurs when all the On particles of soul are in the same state, i.e. On or not On. The final joining of spirit that brings about this state will produce two souls, one On and the other not On. These two souls keep their connection by force of Attraction, but separate and opposite from one another. I wonder if this is the origin of the concept of soul mates. Or even the concept of good and evil.

In other words, a Level 8 spirit perceives itself as pure. All anti-force balanced through joining. Thus, just as there is a universe of matter and anti-matter, Level 8 segregates souls into two regions, i.e., Spirit and anti-Spirit. Each side “knows” what is best for the evolution of lower consciousness and imposes its influence on physical energy that flows from God Consciousness, through Level 8, and into the lower Dimensions.

Imagine spirit might believe benevolence is the best course of evolution, while anti-spirit might believe controversy is the best form of motivation. Both influences will mold the flow of downward energy through Level 8.

A balance of dominate Attraction fosters emotional manifestations of attributes we consider benevolent, such as love and altruism. However, where anti-Attraction becomes the dominate force, the emotional manifestations might be quite the opposite, i.e., selfishness, fear, and its derivatives. Both sides are intent on creating opportunities for evolving spirit to find balance in a sea of conflict.

When two opposite state souls, joined by force of attraction, again function as one, for the betterment of the multi-Dimension universe, they receive an invitation to join with Level 9. Those who accept join with God Consciousness. Rather, they expand to encompass all of God Consciousness. Those who decline receive the exalted title of Angel.

Angels are unique souls because only they have touched God Consciousness. Angels may manifest themselves at any Level, in any physical form. They are the voice of God Consciousness, Master of Physical energy and may transform physical energy on any Level to any form compatible for given Level.

Angels do not visit Level 1 very often, although their intervention on higher planes trickles down to impact Level 1 in significant ways. It is possible and probable that an Angel may interact with Level 2 spirit. This interaction may increase attraction of the Level 2 spirit into Level 3. If Level 1 spirit consciously projects to Level 2 and converses with an Angel, who knows how that conversation might impact humanity? An Angel can also impact a spirit on Level 1 by intervening in the downward flow of physical energy on any Level.

Laws of The Universe and Ancillary conclusions

Two immutable universal laws govern all interactions of energy. These laws are constant across all Levels of the universe.

1. Energy is neither created nor destroyed; only transformed.

2. Spirit animates matter.

Physical energy behaves in specific ways because of its architecture and the influence of conscious energy, aka Spirit. Level 5 creates the mathematics of architecture observable in lower Levels of the universe.

The purpose of the Universe is evolution of Spirit in a homeward journey that returns energy to the source through God Consciousness. Nothing gets lost because God Consciousness retains the sum of all experiences collected by Spirit.

I look forward to a time when we of planet Earth live in mutual love and respect for one another. Such a Utopia is possible when we each stive to be our best selves for the betterment of all who share this world, this universe. The primary obstacle is a belief in separateness, the root of loneliness and fear. Separateness fades between souls that share commonality on Level 2.

Imagine a world where all its residents share membership in a common soul group. I mentioned previously that joining of souls occurs in two scenarios only. First is by ignorance at the lower end of evolution. Second is by agreement on the higher side. Agreement occurs through love and trust.

Can you now imagine the joining of a world population on Level 2? We have a long way to go before arriving there. Somehow, our beliefs systems must first come into alignment. Because we trust and love those that share our beliefs.

Billions of marvelous things will unfold as we walk this path of global joining. We will discover more about the universe and the relationship of Level 2 to Level 1, and the dominion of spirit over matter. Significant scientific advances are coming.

What you believe, as it turns out, is unimportant when measured against the infinite. Our beliefs, regardless of what they are, are refined by time and experience. However, beliefs are the only thing of importance when measured against your personal perception and quality of life. Your perception of the world and those around you will confirm your internal core beliefs, whatever they might be.

You remember the CBT framework I described earlier? Think, feel, act. You have three opportunities to change your core beliefs and immediately improve your life experience. Core beliefs attract a compatible reality, which in turn you perceive, think about, feel the impact, and act accordingly.

What would happen if you decided to act differently? We rarely have only one choice, yet most frequently choose the path of least resistance. The path least taken is often the better choice.

What would happen if you were to question your thoughts? So much of what we think is automatic, influenced by our core beliefs. Core beliefs function like blinders, placing limitation on what we perceive. I am reminded of a story of three blind men each asked to describe an elephant. One touches the tail an says, “It is like a snake.” Another touches the trunk, responding, “That is a very large snake.” The third touches a leg and says “No, it is like a tree.”

We must consider expanding our frame of reference.

Finally, what would happen if you felt differently about whatever circumstance hinders you. Feelings are the more challenging control because they arise automatically from core beliefs. If you choose to act differently, however, feelings will always align with action. Changing how you act eventually impacts core beliefs, because you cannot believe one way if you act to the contrary. There is a saying among actors that I think apropos. Fake it until you make it.

Limitations upon our capabilities are imposed by our belief system. I believe I cannot, therefore I shall not. Knowledge gained through experience changes our beliefs. Expanding experience pushes outward upon the boundary imposed by limiting beliefs. Knowledge improves the quality of experience. So, learn more by exposing yourself to growth opportunities.

I invite each of you to begin the exciting process of examining your own core beliefs. This is possible. What we think affects how we feel. How we feel impacts how we act. How we act influences what we think. Your beliefs can change the world. What might you be capable of?

Happy thoughts. Happy evolution.
